

Just wanted to give you a warning

From: Josh Albrektson <joshraymd@gmail.com>
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Just wanted to give you a warning
Date: Friday, November 17, 2017 7:02 AM
X-Delivered-To: [REDACTED]
Size: 19 KB

Just you and me on this e-mail. You actually have pissed off a TON of people. And one of them has collected every misogynist or other bad article you have ever written. That person has almost had enough of you and is thinking of going public to the LA Times and calling the president of [REDACTED]. So I would think very hard about the next time you send a public request.

As for me, I don't appreciate the accusations you have done against me and some of my friends. So this is just my personal warning to you. Every time you publish an article, any article, from this second forward someone you wouldn't want reading your work will find out what you are writing about. It could end right now with you and [REDACTED] being the only people at [REDACTED] who know about your articles. Or not. Your choice.