Hi, Julie -

I'm going to give him the opportunity first. At UCLA, working with the student government is much more beneficial, effective, and a broader audience than government classes on campus. If he doesn't come through, I have another avenue I can use.

Just curious, are there "other" school related departments on campus (Government classes etc) that would be willing to participate and host? This seems unusual for a school that usually participates in protests. Hopefully we can make it a bit competitive by mentioning we have officers willing and able due to other school entities not being able to follow through. Just an idea. Thank you for keeping us posted.
