Thank you, Julie. I'm at B2V in Las Vegas this weekend, but I'll take a look at my schedule when I return on Monday.

Thanks,
Kevin

Hi Lt Kilgore,

I have attached some information about an upcoming event that LAPD is co-hosting with Paramount Studios (below is a flyer/clickable rsvp). We would love to invite our UCLA staff/law enforcement family and/or students involved in our upcoming days of dialogue or students that you feel would be interested in attending something like this to further their education on reinvigorating non-violence in America. I believe this would be an amazing opportunity for students to see and hear the importance of our interaction and how we are constantly striving to improve relationships. This film is only 40min (2min trailer attached) and we will be hosting a reception / check-in from 6-6:45pm. RSVP is mandatory but can be shared. Please have folks advise the check-in table once they arrive, that they are from UCLA. As soon as our rsvp shows full the tix will no longer be available. This is a free event and the first of its kind. We hope to have UCLA represent, thx again. We hope to cause a ripple effect throughout LA with smaller viewings of the screening and/or open the discussion 60yrs later after Ghandi and MLK paved the way for peace. Thx again!

Julie

p.s. I have cc'd Sgt Watkins (whom you know) and Officer Limon for any follow up questions as I will be out of town.
